KELOWNA CHAMBER BOARD NOMINATIONS NOW OPEN

Kelowna: The Kelowna Chamber of Commerce has announced its annual call for nominations to its volunteer board of directors. Nominations close February 3, followed by an election of directors by members prior to the Chamber's AGM in March.

Jeffrey Robinson, President-Elect of the Board for 2020-2021 says, "The Board's multiple skill sets ensure the Chamber's long-term health and success, setting a tone for organizational effectiveness, innovation and vision. The Directors have their pulses on regional and national trends and help us to support thriving local economic conditions."

Nikki Csek, who will become the Chamber Board's Past President at the March AGM joins Robinson in the call for nominations: "The Chamber Board is a dynamic team of business professionals making an impact in our community. My experiences over this past nearly completed-year have been enriching, have broadened my understanding of local needs and issues, and have allowed me to make hundreds of new, impactful connections."

Chamber directors are volunteers from diverse professional backgrounds who establish the strategic direction for the organization in accordance with its by-laws. Anyone interested in applying to join the Board in 2020 can refer to pertinent information on the Chamber website: <https://www.kelownachamber.org/connect/board-of-directors/nominations/> or contact the Executive Director, Dan Rogers, at the Chamber.
